Performance Summary

Q1 2026 Return	Starting Capital	Ending Capital	Gross Gain
+10.82%	$1,000,000	$1,108,200	$108,200

Executive Summary

Q1 2026 delivered strong returns for the Pillar Global Fund, achieving a +10.82% return, which demonstrates the resilience and strength of our capital-efficient compounding thesis. The portfolio benefited from strong performance in our core stable compounder positions, particularly in the AI and payments sectors, which continued to show structural growth tailwinds. The first quarter was characterized by renewed investor confidence in quality, profitable businesses with durable competitive advantages. Meta's strong recovery, Uber's mobility platform resurgence, and the consistent performance of our payment processors drove meaningful gains. However, the quarter also highlighted the risks in our high-growth positions, particularly in satellite communications and growth technology. This underscores the importance of our diversified approach and our emphasis on capital-efficient businesses with proven cash generation.

Market Environment & Outlook

Market Context: Q1 2026 saw a market rotation favoring quality, profitable businesses. The AI theme continued to strengthen, with mega-cap tech companies leading the rally. Energy and infrastructure sectors also performed well. Portfolio Positioning: Our stable compounders significantly outperformed, driven by Meta's recovery and the consistent strength of Amazon and Alphabet. The payments sector continued its steady ascent, demonstrating the resilience of toll-booth-like business models. Growth Allocation Challenges: Our high-growth sleeve faced headwinds, particularly in satellite communications and marketing technology. These positions reflect our conviction in structural growth opportunities, but they remain volatile and dependent on technological execution. Forward Outlook: We remain constructive on the long-term structural trends underpinning our thesis: digital transformation, AI-driven efficiency, global payment flows, and capital-efficient business models.

Key Takeaways

• Strong Q1 Performance: The portfolio delivered a robust +10.82% return, significantly outperforming in a market environment that favored quality and profitability. • Stable Compounders Shine: Our core 75% allocation to capital-efficient businesses with durable moats delivered exceptional results, with many holdings up double digits. • Growth Volatility Expected: Our high-growth sleeve faced headwinds, a reminder that achieving 10x returns requires patience through cycles. • Cumulative Strength: Over 5 quarters (Q1 2025 - Q1 2026), the portfolio has compounded at a strong pace, growing from $1.0M to $1.586M, a cumulative return of +58.58%. • Strategic Positioning: Our diversified approach across stable compounders, high-growth bets, and tactical turnaround opportunities continues to drive risk-adjusted returns.

Important Disclosures

Hypothetical Performance: The returns presented in this report are based on a hypothetical $1,000,000 investment made at the beginning of Q1 2025. Actual performance will differ based on entry date, fee structure, and individual account timing.

Fee Impact: Returns shown are gross returns before the 1.0% annual management fee applied to founding partners. Net returns after fees would be approximately 0.75% lower annualized.

Risk Disclosure: Pillar Global Fund invests in securities markets and is subject to market risk, including potential loss of principal. Concentration in technology and growth sectors exposes the portfolio to sector-specific risks.
